Talking with President of Encyclopaedia Britannica and he suggested that I write down my notes from the conversation and file them.

I talked about my plans to create a non-profit to build a large-scale Internet archive with Mike Connors last week. He asked if he needed to spend any money for it, and I said I was doing it with my money and on the side. He said fine and said he was interested in hearing how it is going in the future.

Therefore, I am continueing with the project and setting up the organization.
